SCHEDULED MAINT

Information concerning Scheduled Maintenance

The imminent necessity of a SCHEDULED Maintenance service is required:

by a message indicating the remaining interval before the service is required;

by the software system used by an authorised Ferrari service centre to determine component wear.

B.: Disconnecting the battery for a period of more than 30 days will reset the service time counter determining the remaining interval. As a result, the indicator lamp. As a result, the indicator lamp will be performed at least once a year. If the indicator lamp is not displayed or the mileage remaining until the next service interval has not been reached.

The remaining interval before the service is required is expressed in kilometres/miles or days.

The driver may view service counter information on the instrument display at any time, regardless of when the engine is running.

We recommend checking the remaining interval before starting a particularly long journey, especially if the vehicle is used for particularly heavy duty usage.

If necessary, have the following checked at an authorised Ferrari service centre:

- engine oil level
- engine coolant level
- brake and clutch
- tyre pressure and condition

Mandatory road-worthiness and emission tests

Legislation in many countries requires additional tests regarding safety and/or emissions (e.g. safety analysis).

These tests must be conducted by a specialised technician.
